SUSPENDED REALITY

A floating architectural feat invokes space and freedom.

INTERIOR DESIGNER GREG NATALE OF GREG NATALE DESIGN "The kitchen was designed in conjunction with Rudolfsson Alliker Associates Architects, who came up with the idea of the floating island. We wanted to tie in the limed oak floors from the front of the house and the Carrara marble from the bathrooms. And the detailing is clean to match the extension by the architects." What luxury item did you choose for this kitchen regardless of budget? "The engineering to create the floating Caesarstone island, which opens up the kitchen so you can see right out to the pool. A lot of time and effort were put into making it happen. The structural engineer came up with a whole steel structure for it."
